Supplemental Panel Information

Panel #1

Protecting Patients by Preserving the Care Team Model

Throughout the country non-physician providers in several medical specialties are asking state lawmakers, governors, and the federal government to remove requirements for physician supervision in patient treatment. In Georgia, CRNAs, nurse midwives, nurse practitioners, and physicians assistants are demanding more independence from physician oversight. GSA remains at the forefront of the legislative and executive battles to protect patient safety at the state and federal levels. Why is it important for GSA and GA Academy of Anesthesiologist Assistants to lead in preserving the Anesthesia Care Team model? How can GSA/GAAA members assure that all Georgians receive care from the most highly trained and skilled practitioners.

Panelists:

Derek Norton, GSA and Medical Assn. of Georgia contract lobbyist, Moderator

Dr. Julius Hamilton, GSA President

Sen. Ben Watson, MD, Chair, Georgia Senate Health and Human Services Committee

Sen. Michelle Au, MD, Member, Senate HHS

Dr. Patrick Giam, MD, FASA, ASA Speaker of the House of Delegates

Jason Hansen, JD, ASA Director of State Affairs

Panel #2

Inform and Equip Patient Care Decisions Through Title Transparency

Patients are informed and equipped to ask better care-related questions and make more appropriate healthcare choices when they know the level of training of the physicians and non-physicians providing care. Non-physician providers across the country are blurring the disclosure of their training by misappropriating titles of other practitioners. Some CRNAs have adopted “nurse anesthesiologist” when talking with patients. “PA cardiologist” and “nurse obstetrician” are typical of other attempts to misappropriate titles of more highly trained practitioners. How can GSA help assure that patients know exactly who is treating them and know the level of training of the providers in the care continuum?

Panelists:

James E. “Jet” Toney, GSA Executive Secretary, Moderator

Dr. Amanda Brown, Chair, GSA Government Affairs Committee

Sen. Ben Watson, MD, Chair, Georgia Senate Health and Human Services Committee
